Participating in the Name Your Seat campaign is one of the ways you can help us help emerging creative artists as well as commemorate your involvement for prosperity.

The Western Australian Academy of Performing Arts (WAAPA), at Edith Cowan University plays an essential role in enriching the local and international arts scene.

More importantly it is an integral part of preparing aspiring young artists for a career in the performing arts - everything from dance, design and production and arts management to acting, broadcasting, music and music theatre.

Name your seat proved a unique opportunity for friends and supporters to have a naming plaque placed on a seat in either the Geoff Gibbs Theatre, the Roundhouse Theatre or the Music Auditorium.

You’ve been awed for years by performances, now you too, can inspire by naming a seat in one of our theatres, creating your own legacy at WAAPA forever. Name your seat for yourself or memorialise a loved one, with a gift of $300.00. Your inscription will appear on a plaque on a seat, visible to everyone.

Your donation will go towards supporting such things as:
- WAAPA’s National Showcase Tour
- Visiting Guest Artists
- Musical Instruments and Technical Equipment
- International Festivals and Events
Yes, I would like to support WAAPA by being a part of the ‘Name Your Seat’ campaign. Please accept my donation of $300. Donations are tax deductible.

"Having a son at WAAPA expanded my world in unexpected ways. From the first visit when I was mesmerised by the originality and vitality of the Third Year Monologues, I relished coming west and going to performances on campus. Each successive visit helped me understand the students’ passion for theatre, its creative scope and psychological range. Naming a seat is a wonderful and personal way to express support for the Academy and its students.” – Adele MacKay
